Just in time for the 2018 MLB season, the New York Mets had a new custom VIP fan experience installed at Citi Field. The purpose was to draw more attention to the Mets' stadium and score big with fans, creating the ultimate VIP experience.

To create this enhanced experience, Staging Concepts designed a custom platform and railing system fitting for the Citi Pavilion area within the baseball stadium. The solution included 18 platforms with custom railing and aluminum enclosures. What makes this project unique is that the railing was designed to match the existing railing that was completed years ago by our affiliate, Trex Commercial Products. This new custom design was intended to match the existing look.

Finishing off this custom project, Staging Concepts also designed four sets of stair units for the pavilion, included additional drink rails that were bolted to the concrete flooring, and integrated a glass rail for the front of the pavilion near the Mets' baseball field.

Even though Mother Nature did not cooperate for baseball season to begin on time this year, Citi Field was up and ready with a new VIP experience to entertain fans for years to come.
